Mini Golf Project

This year the 8th grade transition class participated in a Mini Golf Project. The objective of their project was to design and construct a unique mini golf hole that incorporates critical thinking, problem-solving, creativity, and STEM skills. They had to come up with and create obstacles for their courses and incorporate different textures. It was a competition between the students and the teachers were the judges. The winners were Memphis Miller, Darcy Cox, Maddy Wolfal, and Shaylin Mackey.

Staff Spotlights

Lauren Day

Ms. Day is a graduate of Fort Recovery High School and Ball State University. She has a degree in Business Education and has taught many different classes in her 10 years at Randolph Southern. Ms. Day still lives in Fort Recovery, and coaches high school softball there. She is also patiently waiting to become an aunt at the end of April.

What would you do if you didn't work in a school?

Be a Graphic Designer.

What are your hobbies outside of school?

Coaching softball and participating in virtual 5Ks.

What is a fun about yourself?

She was a Jr. Firefighter in high school and college.

Madison Miller

Ms. Miller grew up in Iowa and was involved in 4H, FFA, showing sheep, softball, and track. She went to Southeastern Community College and Western Illinois University and graduated from WIU in 2020 with her Bachelor of Arts Degree in English Education. She taught and coached softball in Illinois before moving to Indiana. She's loved being in Indiana and at Randolph Southern so far, and can't wait to see what the future holds!
